Timeclock Employee Guide

How to tap in and out, explain a late start, approve your timesheet and request time off.

START HERE

What you will use

You don't need a password or an account. You need your timeclock card and your work email.

ITEM	WHAT IT IS FOR
Your timeclock card	Tap it on the clock when you arrive and when you leave. The card is yours alone. Never tap for anyone else, and don't lend your card.
The clock screen	Confirms every tap. The big word tells you what was recorded.
Your work email	The clock emails you about late starts, missed punches, your timesheet and time off. Most emails contain a private link.
Private links	Open your timesheet, your late-arrival reason or your time-off page. Each link belongs to you only and stops working after a set time. Don't forward them.
Your manager	Fixes anything the clock got wrong. Only your manager can change a punch time.

In this guide

1 Tapping in and out
What each clock screen means

2 Emails from the timeclock
Which messages you can receive and what to do

3 Explaining a late arrival
Adding a reason to a late punch

4 Reviewing and approving your timesheet
Checking your hours at the end of each pay period

5 Requesting time off
Vacation, personal days and other time away

6 Problems and quick answers

> The timeclock records attendance only
> It records when you tapped in and out. It doesn't calculate your pay, breaks or overtime. If something about your pay looks wrong, ask your manager.

The screenshots come from the actual timeclock software running on sample data. The names and addresses (Dana Morales, Sam Patel, Jordan Lee, timeclock.example.com) are made up. Your own screens will show your name, your company's web address and your own hours.

CHAPTER 1

Tapping in and out

When nobody is using the clock, it shows the date, the time and TAP YOUR CARD. The bars in the top corner show Wi-Fi signal strength.

Waiting for a card

1. Hold your card flat against the reader until the screen changes.
2. The clock shows CARD READ / VERIFYING... and then SAVED / CONFIRMING.... Keep your card away from the reader while it does this.
3. Within a few seconds, a big IN, OUT or LATE appears, with your name at the top and the recorded time at the bottom. You'll also hear a short beep pattern.

You don't choose IN or OUT. The clock decides from your previous tap: your first tap starts your shift (IN) and your next tap ends it (OUT).

1. Card read
The clock is checking your card.

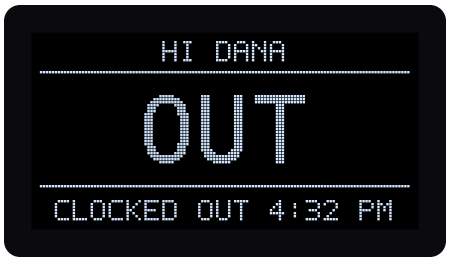

2. Saved
Your tap is stored and being confirmed.

3. The result

IN
Your shift has started. The bottom line shows the recorded time.

OUT
Your shift has ended. Tap out every time you leave.

LATE
You're clocked in, but after your scheduled start. You'll get an email where you can add a reason (Chapter 3).

> Good habits
> Tap once and wait for the result. Tap in when you start work and tap out when you finish. If you forget, tell your manager the same day so your timesheet can be corrected.

Other clock messages

Some taps produce a different screen. Here is what each one means and what to do.

ALREADY RECORDED
You tapped again right after a tap that was already counted. Nothing new is recorded. No action needed.

SEE MANAGER / SWIPE SAVED
Your tap was saved, but it needs a manager to look at it. Let your manager know.

VACATION / NO PUNCH NEEDED
Your account is set up to track time off only, so you don't need to tap in or out. Nothing is recorded.

SCAN BUSY / TAP AGAIN
The clock was busy with another card. Tap your card again.

INVALID CARD / NOT RECORDED
The clock doesn't recognize this card. Nothing was recorded. Tell your manager right away.

CLOCK NOT SYNCED / NOT RECORDED
The clock isn't sure of the correct time, so it refused the tap. Nothing was recorded. Tell your manager.

> Whenever the screen says NOT RECORDED
> Your tap did not count. Tell your manager what time you arrived or left so they can add it. The same applies to SAVE FAILED.

When the clock is offline

If the clock loses its connection, it keeps working. Your tap is saved on the clock and you'll see SAVED / CONFIRMING... instead of IN or OUT. The idle screen then shows how many taps are waiting, for example 3 SAVED ON CLOCK. When the connection returns, it shows SENDING 2 SWIPES while it catches up. Saved taps keep their original time, so you don't need to tap again.

Taps waiting on the clock

Connection back, sending saved taps

CHAPTER 2

Emails from the timeclock

Emails come from your company's timeclock address. Your company decides which ones are turned on, so you might not receive all of them.

EMAIL	WHEN IT COMES	WHAT TO DO
Welcome to the timeclock	When your manager sets you up on the timeclock	Keep it. It contains the web address for requesting time off.
Late arrival on (date)	When you tap in after your scheduled start	Optional: add a reason with the link (Chapter 3).
No IN punch for (date)	A few minutes after your scheduled start, if you haven't tapped in	If you are working, tell your manager your start time. If you already tapped in, ignore it.
No OUT punch for (date)	A few minutes after your scheduled finish, if you haven't tapped out	If you left without tapping out, tell your manager your departure time. If you're still working, ignore it.
Your timesheet for (dates)	At the end of each pay period	Open the link, check your hours and approve (Chapter 4).
Your time-off request link	When you ask for one on the time-off page	Use it within 24 hours (Chapter 5).
Time-off request received / approved / denied / cancelled	When you submit a request, and when your manager decides on it	Read the manager note, if any.
Timesheet approved without your confirmation	When your manager approves your hours for you	Contact your manager if anything is wrong.

Timeclock: Late arrival on 2026-10-07

Hello Dana Morales,

Scheduled start: 2026-10-07 08:00:00
Recorded IN: 2026-10-07 08:14:00
Late: 14 minutes

To add a reason, use this link within seven days:
https://timeclock.example.com/n/523bf1...

Contact your manager about any approved exception.

Your timesheet for 2026-10-01 to 2026-10-15

https://timeclock.example.com/review/a1a1...

Hello Dana Morales,

Your timesheet for 2026-10-01 to 2026-10-15 is ready.
Please review and approve it using the link. If anything is wrong, tell your manager.

Contact your manager if something looks wrong.

Is this email real? Real timeclock links always start with your company's timeclock web address, like the one in your welcome email. The timeclock never asks for a password. If you're unsure, ask your manager before you click.

CHAPTER 3

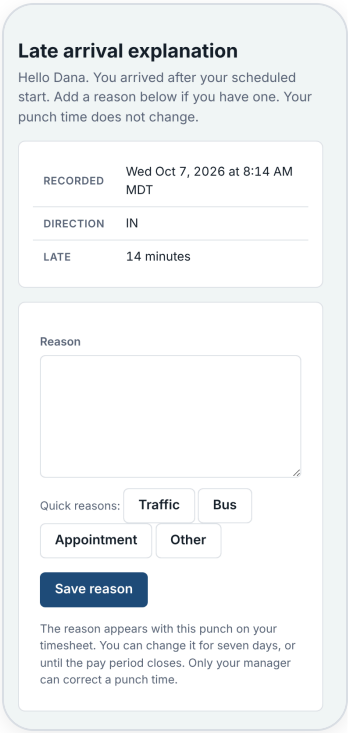

Explaining a late arrival

When you tap in after your scheduled start, the clock emails you a private link. Use it to tell your manager why you were late. Adding a reason is optional.

1. Open the link in the Late arrival email.
2. Check the details: when you tapped, the direction (IN) and how many minutes late.
3. Type a reason, or tap a quick reason: Traffic, Bus or Appointment. Other just moves the cursor into the box so you can type.
4. Tap Save reason.

Your reason can be up to 500 characters.

> A reason doesn't change your punch time
> The tap stays at the time it was recorded. Only your manager can correct a punch time. If the clock got the time wrong, contact your manager.

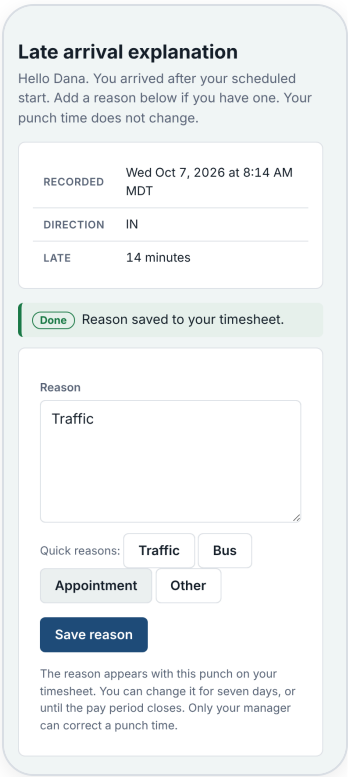

The late arrival page

After you save

The page shows Done Reason saved to your timesheet. The reason now appears next to that punch on your timesheet.

You can change the reason using the same link for seven days, or until the pay period closes, whichever comes first. After that, the page only shows the saved reason and says This link is closed. Contact your manager if it needs to change.

Reason saved

CHAPTER 4

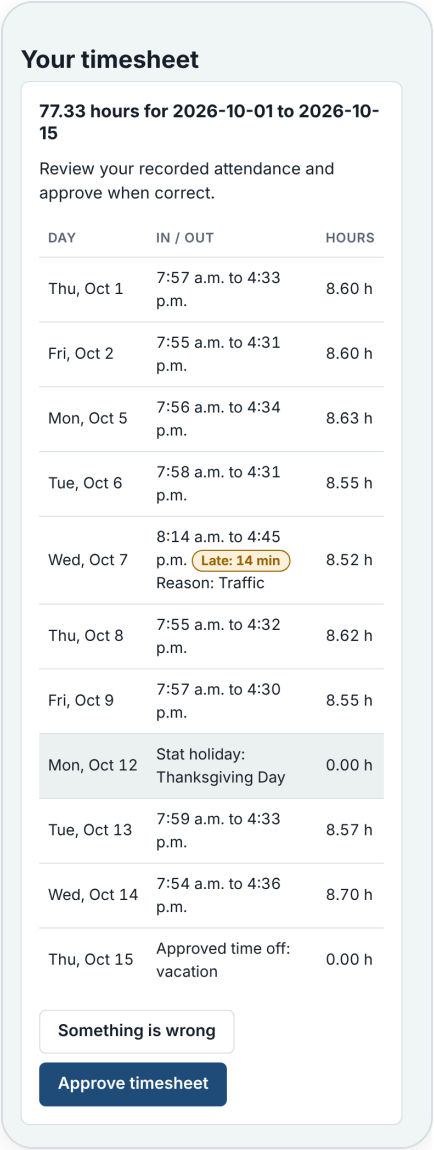

Reviewing and approving your timesheet

At the end of each pay period, you'll get an email with a private link to your timesheet. The link works for 14 days.

- Top line: your total recorded hours for the pay period.
- One row per shift: the day, your IN and OUT times, and the hours between them. A shift that ends after midnight is marked (next day).
- Flags on a row: Late: 14 min, Manager correction, Manager-added punch, or Missing punch.
- Reason: any late-arrival reason you added.
- Shaded rows for stat holidays and approved time off. These show 0.00 h because no punches are recorded on those days.

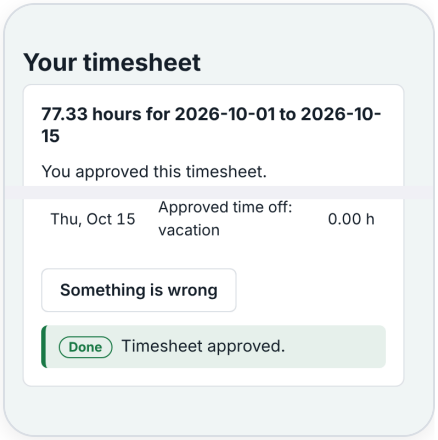

Hours are the time between your IN and OUT taps. The timeclock doesn't deduct breaks or calculate pay.

A complete timesheet, ready to approve

Approving

1. Check every row against what you actually worked.
2. If everything is right, tap Approve timesheet.
3. Your browser asks: "Approve this recorded timesheet? Your manager can still correct errors." Choose OK.
4. The page shows Done Timesheet approved. and the top of the page now says You approved this timesheet.

After approving (middle rows hidden)

When you can approve

- Approval opens on the last day of this period. If you open the link earlier, you can look but the Approve button is hidden.
- This period is closed. Once the pay period is closed, you can view the page but not approve it.
- If your manager changes your hours or time off after you approve, the Approve button comes back. Check the changes and approve again.

> Approving confirms what was recorded
> Your manager can still correct errors after you approve. Your manager can also approve your hours without you. If that happens, you'll get an email saying so.

When something is wrong

Missing punches

If a shift is missing its IN or OUT, the row turns red with a Missing punch flag and a banner says, for example, 1 incomplete shift. Contact your manager.

The Approve timesheet button stays greyed out until your manager adds the missing punch. After that, open the same link again and approve.

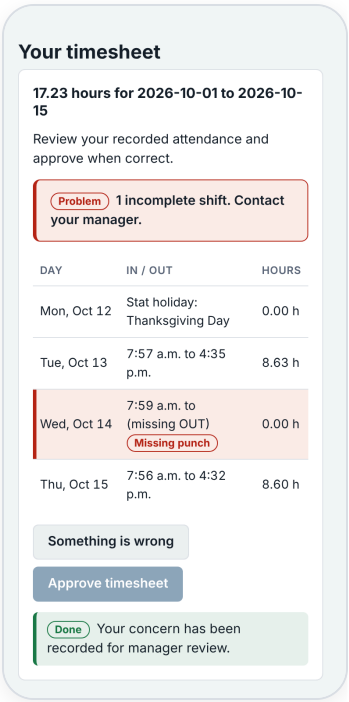

A forgotten OUT tap blocks approval

Reporting a problem

1. Tap Something is wrong.
2. Your browser asks: "What looks wrong with your hours?" Describe the problem in at least 5 characters. Include the date and the correct time, for example: I left at 4:30 on Oct 14 but forgot to tap out.
3. Choose OK. The page shows Your concern has been recorded for manager review.

Your note is emailed to your managers. You'll see the result on your timesheet once they've made the correction.

Problem reported

CHAPTER 5

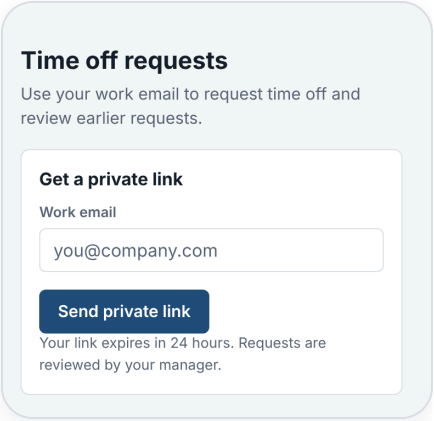

Requesting time off

Time-off requests use the Time off requests page. Its address is in your welcome email and ends in /time-off, for example https://timeclock.example.com/time-off.

Get your private link

1. Open the time-off page.
2. Enter your work email and tap Send private link.
3. The page says Check your email now. The link works for 24 hours.
4. Open the email Your time-off request link and tap the link.

> No email arrived?
> Check that you used the work email your manager has on file, and check your junk folder. If you ask again within 15 minutes, no new email is sent, so use the one you already got. If nothing arrives, ask your manager. They can also send you a link.

Enter your work email

Link sent

Your time-off page

Your private page has two parts: Previous requests and New request. When a request is still waiting for a decision, the list of previous requests appears first.

Request status

Waiting	Your manager hasn't decided yet.
Approved	The time off is booked. It appears on your timesheet.
Denied	Not approved. Read the manager note for the reason.
Cancelled	An approval your manager later cancelled.

Each request shows its dates, the number of days, the type, your return date and any manager note.

To change or cancel a request, contact your manager. You can't edit a request after you submit it.

Previous requests

Making a new request

1. Choose the Request type: Vacation, Personal day, Unpaid time off or Other.
2. Pick the Starting date and Ending date. Both are included, so one day off means the same date in both boxes.
3. The clock fills in Total days requested and suggests a Return to work date. Working days follow your schedule and skip stat holidays. If you don't have a fixed weekly schedule, it counts weekdays as an estimate.
4. Check the return date and change it if needed.
5. Add Notes for your manager if you want (up to 500 characters).
6. Tap Submit request.

> Leave Total days requested as calculated
> The request won't submit if this number doesn't match the calculated working days. If you need a different count, for example a half day, explain it in Notes.

Your vacation allowance

The grey box shows your approved vacation for the calendar year, for example 2026: Vacation: 6 of 15 days used. It counts approved vacation days, including future ones. Waiting, denied and cancelled requests aren't counted, and neither are stat holidays.

It's for your information only. You can still request more days than your allowance, and your manager decides. If your request crosses New Year, each year is shown separately. If no allowance is set for you, it says unspecified.

A completed request

After you submit

The page shows Request submitted. Your manager will review it. Your new request appears at the top of your previous requests as Waiting.

You'll get a confirmation email, and another email when your manager approves or denies the request. If an approval is later cancelled, you'll be told by email too.

Time-off request received: 2026-12-28 to 2026-12-31

Hello Dana Morales,

Your vacation request for 2026-12-28 to 2026-12-31 (4 working days, returning 2027-01-04) was sent to your manager.

Status: Pending.

The private link stops working 24 hours after it was sent. To come back later, request a new link from the time-off page.

The new request is waiting

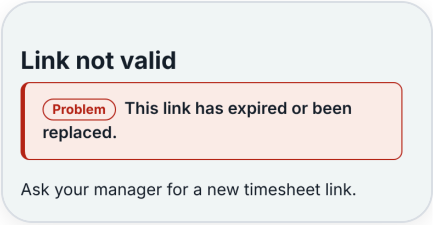

CHAPTER 6

Problems and quick answers

"Link not valid" or "Link expired"

Private links stop working after a set time, or when a newer link replaces them:

Timesheet link	14 days. Ask your manager for a new one.
Late arrival reason	7 days, or until the pay period closes.
Time-off link	24 hours. Request a new one from the time-off page.

An expired timesheet link

SITUATION	WHAT TO DO
I forgot to tap in or out	Tell your manager the actual time, the same day if you can. Don't tap later to make up for it, because the clock records the time you tap.
I tapped twice by mistake	If the screen said ALREADY RECORDED, nothing extra was saved. Otherwise, tell your manager.
The screen said NOT RECORDED	Your tap didn't count. Tell your manager the time.
My card is lost or damaged	Tell your manager. They'll switch off the old card and give you a replacement. Your past punches are kept.
My timesheet hours look wrong	Use Something is wrong on the timesheet page, or contact your manager.
I can't approve my timesheet	Approval opens on the last day of the period and closes when the period is closed. Missing punches also block approval until your manager fixes them.
I want to cancel a time-off request	Contact your manager.
Someone asks to use my card, or to tap for them	Say no. Each card records only its owner's attendance.

> Keep your links private
> Anyone with one of your links can see or act on that page, so don't forward timesheet, time-off or late-arrival emails. Each link only works for its time limit.
